Date of issuing of the initiative: December 2016

Reference period: 2016

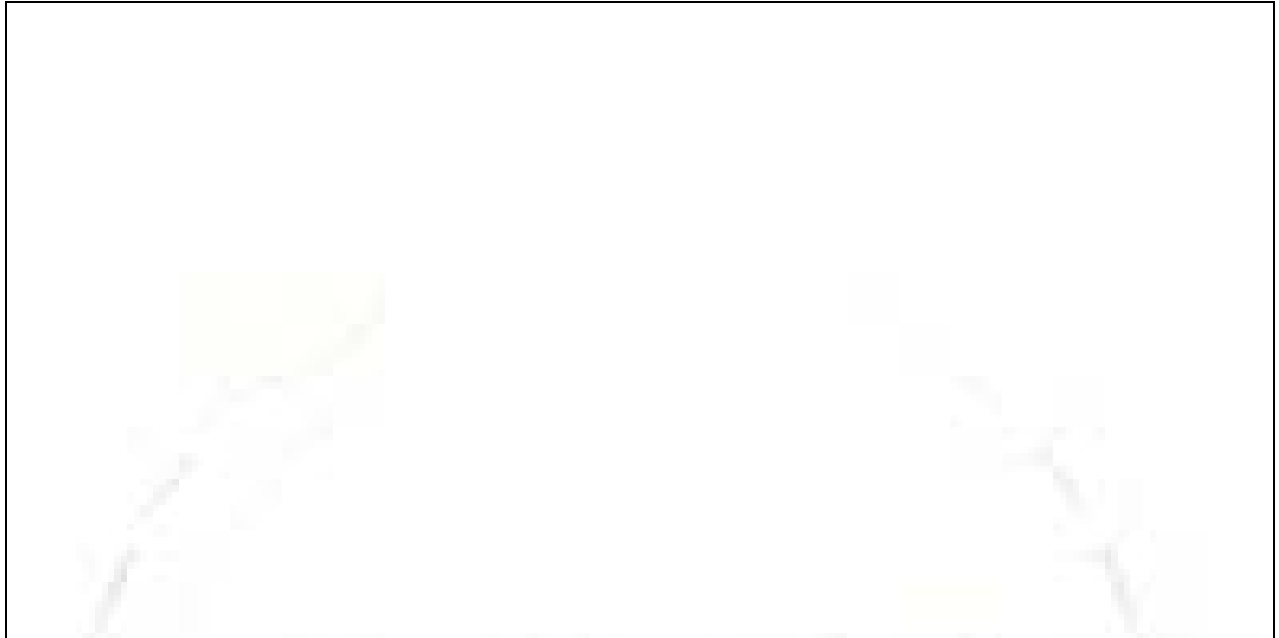

Short description of the initiative

The Brussels Parliament organized in October 2016 an important symposium on the consequences, in particular for local authorities, of the European budgetary rules on investment of the public authorities. The participants at the symposium were among others Pierre Moscovici (European Commission), Karl-Heinz Lambertz (CoR), Pierre-Emmanuel Noël (EIB), Luca Ascoli (Eurostat) and Philippe Laurent (Council of European Municipalities and Regions).

The aim of the publication of this brochure is to make the content of the discussions known to as wide a public as possible.

Role of the regional Assembly:

The parliament organized the symposium, published the report and distributed it to all interested persons and to the public.

Main features of the initiative

- The organization of the symposium
- The attending of 200 participants
- The presence of important European and regional stakeholders

CALRE AWARD “Stars of Europe”

- The publication of a brochure with the content of the debates

Description of the consequences on the regions pointing out the positive European implications:

The purpose of the event was to discuss a technical issue, the understanding of which is often difficult, and which nevertheless governs the way in which public authorities, including local authorities, act their mission of public service.

It was also a matter of having a debate on one of the policies (the budgetary rules) of the European Union which is now part of our political landscape, and avoiding a debate for or against the European Union.
